

The Ripple Effect

Rob Roznowski and Deric McNish

The Ripple Effect is an international, intercultural collaboration between Michigan State University students and the Citizen Association for Cultural Initiatives: Bullfrogs Ballet in North Macedonia. The grant was recently approved. The project aims to use theatre and dance to raise awareness about environmental issues, foster intercultural connections, and create meaningful change in communities around the world. Our collaboration will not only create a platform for shared perspectives and solutions to environmental problems faced by both countries but also provide an opportunity for students and artists to engage in interdisciplinary, cross-cultural, and collaborative approaches to addressing these pressing issues. We are seeking a Michigan-based climate Justice Expert to act as a consultant paid a fee from the grant.
